Business continuity: tax dimension

Business continuity: tax dimension

These days, business is facing drastic challenges. Cross-border corporate structures might be forced to make choices that have high up-front costs for any of their elements, including:

-  legal structure
-  finance and treasury
-  intellectual property (IP)
-  supply chain
-  relocation of personnel

In this rapidly evolving global environment, tax teams are necessarily involved in developing measures to ensure business continuity and manage impact on the staff, supply chain, and customers. It is important to create a vision for the future and keep tax strategies integrated, sustainable, and flexible, as well as comply with the currency control rules.

Any measures will be additionally complicated by the growing attention to cross-border movement of funds on the part of the Russian authorities.

We will be pleased to:

- discuss your structures/models and their sustainability in a complex fiscal and currency control landscape
- answer your tax and currency control technical questions that come up regularly
- share our vision and experience on managing the effective tax rate of a cross-border business
- hear your valuable practical insights
- come up with solutions to assess the tax and currency control risks and opportunities arising from reorganisations, financing of transactions, restructuring of intragroup debts, relocation of personnel, structuring of contracts, transfer of assets/liabilities, etc.
- help you analyse, develop, and implement business continuity measures from a tax and currency control perspective
- support your business by integrating tax and business strategies to create efficient operating models;
- support your business with accounting and tax reporting services so that your team could focus on strategic tasks.
